

Balancing New York's 2007-2008 State Budget in an Economically Sensible Manner

Wednesday, February 28
9:00—10:30 A.M.

Seneca Falls Community Center
35 Water Street, Seneca Falls

Senior Economist Trudi Renwick from the Fiscal Policy Institute will provide a briefing to analyze the 2007-2008 New York State Executive budget proposals. Renwick's discussion will include an update on the economic situation, as well as a discussion of both revenue and spending proposals. Trudy is adept at translating economic language into ordinary language.

This workshop will be helpful for social service agencies or community advocates looking for a glimpse of what to expect in the coming year.

Cost: $5.00 includes a light breakfast

RSVP by Feb 23 to:
Rhonda Zettlemoyer
Rzettlemoyer@dor.org
(315) 789-2235 ext. 104

Help that works.....
Hope that Lasts

The Fiscal Policy Institute is a nonpartisan research and education organization that focuses on a broad range of tax, budget, economic and related public policy issues that affect the quality of life and economic well-being of New York State residents